

Dear Domenico Andrea Schiuma,

On behalf of the Political Studies Association, I am writing to confirm that you presented the following paper at the 73rd PSA Annual International Conference on 3 - 5 April 2023 at the University of Liverpool, Liverpool, United Kingdom:

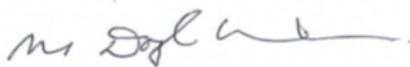

Dr. Domenico Andrea Schiuma, University of Genova (PhD); University of Southampton (Visiting Research Student), Why Does the Institutionalization of Participatory Budgetings Occur and Why Not? Building a Model for the Implementation of a Qualitative Comparative Analysis in the Participatory and Deliberative Democracy SG: Democratic Preferences Formation and Methodological Challenges panel.

The PSA Annual International Conference is one of the foremost politics-related academic gatherings, attracting up to 600 in-person attendees and 150 digital attendees over three days. The University of Liverpool sought submissions on the theme of "Political Futures," encompassing a broad range of topics related to the future of political theory and practice. From exploring utopias and dystopias in political thought to considering the impact of technological change on political systems, from analysing the challenges of "future-proofing" public policy to investigating generational change and its potential political impact, the conference welcomed diverse perspectives and interdisciplinary approaches.

The 73rd PSA Annual International Conference was an opportunity to present the latest scholarship from across disciplinary and methodological traditions whilst also exploring the 2023 theme, 'Political Futures'.

Thank you again for presenting your paper and we look forward to your participation at future PSA Conferences. If you need any further information, please do not hesitate to contact me using the details below.

Best wishes,

Michelle Doyle Wildman

Chief Executive Officer

Political Studies Association, UK